Under old business, Bill Monday, presented several options on the protective cover labeling for the Macworld subscriptions we furnish for the Crossville and Putnam Libraries. Bill will get additional information which is needed before a final decision can be made.

For the program, Woody Geisler presented his review of the newest iMovie vrs.7.1.1 which has extensive manipulation features for changing still digital pictures into movies. This includes sound with the slides/moving pictures. Voice over, transitions, mechanical and natural sounds, split video and editing both music and pictures. Even the "Ken Burns effect" is made easy if desired. A most effective presentation.
